

Did you know.....

That our Technology department works with superconducting magnets that only work at really, really cold temperatures (lower than -200 C)? This is the same technology that can be used to make magnetic levitating trains that can get you from New York to Los Angeles in under seven hours!